SET 'EM UP

THE weekly meeting of the "For Men Only" Club of Vestal High was in session. The club had been formed because the boys felt that a coed club wouldn't give them a chance to air their views the way they wanted to.

"I've got a problem, gang," said Steve.

"Try plastic surgery!" quipped Tony.

Steve glanced disgustedly at Tony before explaining what his trouble was.

"You all remember what happened when Maddy convinced me to let her go along when I went to Rifle Club. She practically eliminated all the members! Well—now—it's bowling!" he announced dramatically.

There were murmurs of sympathy from the club members. They all knew that Maddy was one of the prettiest girls in the crowd—but also one of the wackiest. Every so often a situation like this came up, and Steve was stuck.

"Just what do you mean by 'bowling'?" asked Larry.

"If all she wants is for you to teach her how to bowl, that shouldn't be too much," chimed in Tony.

"Look, guys," continued Steve, "with any other girl a bowling date would be a run-of-the-mill affair, but with Maddy . . ." He shook his head despairingly.

"I've got a brilliant idea!" exclaimed Tony. "Take her bowling—and make her sorry she ever heard of it! You know what to do. Get her to use a bowling ball that she can hardly lift. Tell her to get dressed up for it so she'll feel like a jitterbug at a minuet party."

Steve was hesitant. "Golly, Tony! Sounds a little mean to me." He thought for a minute. "Do you really think it'll work?"

The other fellows seemed to think that Tony had really latched on to a good idea, and they advised Steve to try it.

"Okay! I'll call Maddy tomorrow, and we'll go bowling Saturday night," Steve said firmly.

"Wait a minute!" exclaimed Paul Keefer. "Saturday night the whole gang will be there. You don't want to make a fool of Maddy in front of everyone!"

"Aw, that doesn't make any difference," interrupted Tony.

"What are you being an eager beaver about, Tony!" Larry queried. "Are you up to anything?"

Tony looked around innocently. "Why, fellows," he said in a hurt shocked voice, "whatever makes you think—!"

Steve put his coat on. "I'm going to try it. So long, everyone!"

A few minutes after Steve left, Tony said he had to leave, and he dashed out of the room.

Larry looked worried. "Tony's up to something. I bet he's going to tell Maddy what Steve's got in mind! He's been trying to get a date with her for a long time. This can make him look as if his only mission in life is to save Maddy from a nasty trick."

Paul Keefer looked around to make sure Tony hadn't returned. He motioned them all to move their chairs together so they couldn't be overheard.

"There's only one thing to do—and we're going to do it!" Paul explained his plan, and the others agreed heartily with him.

Meanwhile Steve had made a beeline for Maddy's house.

Maddy's mother, Mrs. Deland, answered his knock. "Go into the living room, Steve. Maddy's there somewhere."

When Steve entered the living room, he realized what Mrs. Deland had meant.

Maddy was knitting. At least she was trying to knit. She was working furiously with four needles. The yarn was tangled around everything, and instruction books littered the floor and tables.

"Hi, Maddy!" Steve smiled weakly. "Nice mittens you're working on there."

"Socks!" Maddy said bitterly. "Not mittens."

"Well, socks. Very colorful. You've got about five different colors there. Very colorful," he stammered.

Maddy looked up. "They're for you. It was going to be a surprise!"

Steve was horrified. "F—for me?" his voice shook.

Maddy held up a sock that was obviously completed. It was large enough to make a comfortable cover for an auto tire.

"Think it'll fit?" she inquired.

"It'll fit all right. If I hang it over the fireplace at Christmas time, my family will accuse me of being a hog," he answered.

Before Maddy could make any remarks, he launched into plans for a bowling date. He advised Maddy to wear silk stockings and a rather dressy outfit. He promised to teach her everything essential for becoming a bowling champion.

Maddy looked at Steve suspiciously. "When I told you yesterday I wanted to go bowling, you moaned as if you had a severe attack of cramps. You've certainly had a change of heart!"

It took time to convince Maddy that Steve had her best interests at heart. He left with nightmarish visions of Saturday night and of himself in the knitted socks. Well, he thought, she's worth it.

Five minutes after Steve left, Tony arrived.

"I came to warn you!" he announced self-righteously. He told Maddy about the meeting that night and what Steve was planning. He embroidered the details to the point of telling her that he had begged Steve not to do such an embarrassing thing.

Maddy was angry at first, but all she finally said was, "Thanks for letting me know what was cooking, Tony. Good night."

Tony was evidently ready to make another speech, but Maddy interrupted him. "Be there Saturday night—the bowling alley, I mean." She smiled. "Both you and Steve will get a big surprise."

A little while after Tony left, Paul and Larry called on Maddy. They all talked for a long time, and apparently it was a successful conference because Paul and Larry were whistling cheerfully as they left the house.

Maddy was unable to date Steve for the rest of the week. She said that she wanted to finish her knitting, but if Steve could have seen the abandoned knitting needles and twisted yarn lying around forlornly, he would have known he had something to worry about.

The night of the bowling date finally came. Steve rang the Deland doorbell and listened for the tapping of high heels, but he heard someone running down the steps very easily.

Maddy flung the door open. She was wearing a sensible sports outfit and sturdy flat-heeled shoes. She was grinning happily.

"You look as if you've just been struck with a coke bottle! Why the wide-eyed stare?" she asked in a too sweet tone.

"Nothing!" he exclaimed. "Say," he suddenly asked, "has Tony been here?"

"So many people have been here, I really don't remember." Maddy put on her coat and rushed him out of the house. "I can hardly wait to make my first strike."

The whole crowd was there when they arrived. Maddy chose an alley next to the one occupied by Paul, Larry and Tony.

"I take a size five shoe," Maddy said.

"Huh?" Steve was amazed.

"Bowling shoes," Maddy said calmly.

The three boys smiled happily—but for different reasons.

After that Steve didn't know what was happening. Maddy pushed him aside when he went to pick out a heavy ball for her. She chose a light, easily manageable one. She acted as if she'd been bowling since she was two years old. She kept score and didn't once ask Steve for advice—not that he had come out of his stupor to offer her any either.

What topped everything was that Maddy chalked up a much higher score than Steve!

Tony looked worried. Steve and Maddy had finished playing and were putting their coats on. And Maddy was still as friendly as ever to Steve. Tony was expecting a scene. He got one.

Steve walked up to him and said, "Thought you'd be the 'good pal' and warn Maddy. Well, you proved to me what I already know. Maddy's a wonderful sport, and you're a terrific dope!" He looked pityingly at Tony and walked out.

At the coke bar Steve looked sheepishly at Maddy. "I wouldn't blame you if you never spoke to me again."

"I know," she said blithely. "But," she added, "Larry and Paul explained how the whole thing came about. And for the past week I've been knocking myself out learning how to bowl. I'm going to give up my knitting, too. Bowling's strictly in the groove for me!"

Steve offered a silent prayer of thanksgiving.

By KENT B. STILES

One of philately's useful purposes is that the hobby's designs provide mental enrichment by adding knowledge regarding persons who have played roles, some important, others obscure, in history. As examples, recent stamps have introduced portraits of Constantine S. Alexiev and Vladimir I. Nemirovich-Danchenko and Vasilii P. Stasov of Russia, Domingo de Basavilbaso of Brazil, Franz X. Gruber and Joseph Mohr of Austria, Carlos Martinez Silva of Colombia, Joaquim J. Silva Xavier of Brazil, Ludwik Warynski of Poland.

Through philately you may learn their background stories and how the men contributed to civilization.

Alexiev (whose stage name was Stanislavsky) was actor and producer, and Nemirovich-Danchenko, was playwright and producer; together they founded the Moscow Art Theatre in 1898. Stasov, who died a century ago, was a leading architect. Basavilbaso established postal service in Argentina's Plata region two centuries ago. Gruber composed the melody of that beautiful Christmas carol "Silent Night, Holy Night" 130 years ago, and Mohr wrote the words. Martinez Silva was a 19th century author and diplomat. Silva Xavier was a patriot whom the Portuguese hanged in 1792 because he sought independence for Brazil. Warynski died in a Russian prison in 1889 for his activities on behalf of Polish liberation.

BLACKHEADS "PET HATE"

Say Men, Girls in Choosing Date

What a "black mark" is the blackhead . . . according to men and girls popular enough to be choosy about dates!

"Nobody's dreamboat!" "Nobody's date bait!" And that's not all that's said of those who are careless about blackheads. But blackheads ARE ugly! Blackheads ARE grimy! And they DON'T look good in close-ups!

So can you blame the fellow who says, "Sure, I meet lots of girls who look cute at first glance. But if, on that second glance, I see dingy blackheads, it's good night!"

Or can you blame the girl who confesses, "I hate to go out with a fellow who has blackheads. If he's careless about that you're sure he'll embarrass you in other ways, too!"

But you — are YOUR ears burning? Well, you've company and, sad to say, good company. There are lots of otherwise attractive fellows and girls who could date anyone they like if they'd only realize how offensive blackheads are . . . and how easily and quickly they could get rid of them . . . if they want to!

"He-Man" Often Guilty of Blackhead Crime

Take your "he-man" . . . super at track, games, sports of all kinds . . . who thinks that after just a shower he's ready to go anywhere! And won't the girls all admire his muscles!

Sure they would! But not many dance floors are set up for hurdle races! You can't show off your snappy left hook when only cokes are in the ring. The "he-man" who's also clean-cut, will get the breaks wherever he is.

Even Cute Girls Become Careless

Easy, too easy, for a girl to think that if she has the latest in clothes and hair-do she needn't bother about blackheads. A little more make-up, she guesses, will take care of that. BUT MAKE-UP WON'T HIDE BLACKHEADS! Not unless it's plaster of paris, maybe! And even good make-up "slips" at a dance! So don't take chances, cute though you may be!

TAKE THESE TIPS TO BANISH BLACKHEADS

Keep skin clean by washing morning and night with warm, almost hot, water. Use good soap and plenty of it. And finish with cool water.

Extract every blackhead as soon as you see it—with a SAFE extractor. Don't use finger nails. Don't squeeze. That may mean infection, injured tissues, a marred skin.

Just be clean! Be quick! And be safe! That's easy! And that's ALL!
